The Alumni Banquet and Orate.

An occasion of scarcely secondary importance is the annual alumni banquet. THE TRIBUNE attaches considerable weight to these annual gatherings believing that the esprit de corps of the alumni has much to do with the success of a school even of the high school grade. This was the fourth annual celebration and about 50 membtrs of the alumni participated despite the heavy rainstorm which prevailed during the early part of the evening and made it impossible for quite a number to attend.

The east ward school building was the scene of the occasion. The assembly room was converted into a receptionroom and rendered attractive and cosy with a generous use of furniture, rugs, curtains, palms, ferns, cut flowers, red bunting etc., observing as far as possible the class color scheme of red, green and

A Denver friend sends The Tribune enjoy the commencement events. the following account of a wedding of interest to many McCook and Red Willow county people:

"On Tuesday afternoon, May 31st, 1904, at five o'clock, Mr. Holton Longnecker of Rollinsville, Colo., and Miss Daisy Jackson of McCook, Neb., were united in marriage by the Kev. Vosburg of the First Baptist church of Denver,

"The bride was attired in a pretty gown of champagne cloth trimmed in light blue and carried white carnations. "Following the ceremony the bridal party was entertained at a two-course luncheon at the home of friends.

"They will reside in Rollinsville, Colo., where the groom is successfully engaged in the drug business.

Were Flood Losers at Fort Collins.

THE TRIBUNE is sorry to learn that Z. O. Holcomb and family were quite heavy losers by the flood of a few weeks since at FortCollins and other Colorado points. They had just recently become purchasers of a home and nine lots, and about everything was swept away by the flood but the home. Outbuildings, hen house, garden, fruit trees etc. were all destroyed, making quite a severe loss.
